

SATURDAY GAZETTE JANUARY 23

After Dinner.

Gov. Pick of Vermont is a bachelor. Marrying would make half a bushel of him.

A Minnesota man makes the winter seem short by giving his note payable in the spring.

"Sally, at what time do your folks dine? Soon as you go away—that's missus' orders."

Charles E. Elverson said of one his critics, "The more I think of him, the less I think of him."

"You look as if you were beside yourself," said a wag to a fellow who stood by the side of an ass.

Upon the marriage of Miss Wheat of Virginia, an editor hopes that her path may be bowery, and that she may never be thrashed by her husband.

Taken away my first letter, take away my second letter, take away all my letters, and I am still the same—the postman.

"Oh, no," said Miss M'Stinger, rushing to her me—"ma, what a very twelve dozen creature our wedding would be! I decided to have what that, and I've added the shrinking magnas."

"Why don't you know that twice dozen is a gross, and gross is very coarse?" Yes, of course. What a lovely thing education is in my child!"

"What will you ask to warrant these horses good?" asked a buyer of a horse-dealer. "Oh, don't trouble yourself; I'll warrant them good, for nothing" was the rather equivalent reply.

"What ailment can you find on an oak?" asked an orator. "A—corn," was the triumphant reply of the gentleman on the platform.

I just put out a poster for Talmage's last book, "Old Wells Done Out." The next day I received a postal card, which read: "Dear Sir, I see you have old wells dug out. I have an old well I want dug out. Send your man around at once to 17 Beele street. Yours truly, R. Eord."

A sheriff clerk of Dundee was attending a funeral. How odd was our departed friend, he professed of a nature in the dead. "Very old, I believe he was in his eighty-fourth year," was the reply. "Not so very old—if my father was alive, he would be 12," replied the clerk.

Something never relished by printers—Pi.

The "bus" that crossed the ocean—Columbus.

A man was lately arrested for taking things to come.

A Galveston damsel has sued a young fellow for breaking her heart while acting for the benefit of his wife.

A pretty country girl is a "mimic reader."

She said to a beautiful beaute the other night, "I believe you are going to kiss me."

She was right.

The women have succeeded in revolutionizing the world by wearing men's hats, and now (says a cynic) they are mad because they haven't got men's heads to cover with them.

CARE OF MILCH COWS.

A good cow, properly cared for, supplied with suitable feed, and provided with a comfortable stable or shed, will play an important part in supporting a family. No one can afford to keep a cow, nor to keep a good cow, unless he can supply her with clean and buttery, or cream and butter, constituents of the milk, as such food will supply all the essential elements for developing strong, healthy, and symmetrical frames, muscle, teeth, and brains. In cold and stormy localities, every cow should have a comfortable place, where the pierce wind can blow over her head, and the heat from the bed-sides as to fasten the cow's neck in cruel stanchions. A cow's tongue and the end of her horns should always be free, so that they may be employed to lick and scratch parts of her body when they need it. Our "Dairy" has a clean bed day and night, knee deep over all the floor of her stall, and she returns generally to the same place after milking. Her food will make thin and blue milk. Disturbing and slops will increase the flow of milk, but it will be poor in cream and in butter producing elements. No cow can make rich milk out of weedy and musty hay and mouldy corn stalks. The meal of Indian corn and peas fed in connection with prime hay, red clover, and turnips, will produce the richest quality of milk. Whoever allows his cow to become emaciated in cold weather, pays an exorbitant price for his milk, cream, and butter.

WHY DON'T OUR HEN'S LAY?

BY AGRICOLA.

There are many reasons why hens do not lay eggs in cold weather. As a general rule, all the surroundings of fowls in the winter are adverse to the production of eggs. It is unnatural for hens to lay in the winter, and they do not do it. They do not at this season of the year in a laying habit. When a hen is not in a laying habit, she will produce eggs no sooner than a cow will yield milk when she is not in a milking habit. During the latter part of the growing season, and early in winter, in most countries, there is the richest quality of milk. Whenever allows his cow to become emaciated in cold weather, pays an exorbitant price for his milk, cream, and butter.
